hardwood range

Trust in the Barrington range from Australian Select Timbers to make your home complete.

Australian Select Timbers unique hardwood range (Barrington) is harvested from the Barrington tops near Gloucester, New South Wales.

Our beautiful Australian timber range will give you the choice of style and colour to complete any interior design possible. Ranging from the deep warm colours of Jarrah for a more traditional feel, through to a sophisticated contemporary feel of Spotted Gum.

Why does our Barrington Range appeal to so many people?

Barrington Construction

Barrington comes with a Lifetime Structural Warranty due to the stable construction of our high grade multi-ply core, this allows for minimal movement when exposed to environmental changes such as moisture or heat. The timber surface comes with a 4mm timber top layer which allows for many years of resurfacing.

Environmentally Friendly

The timbers we harvest are from managed forests where old growth forests are left free to stand. Engineered flooring is a wonderful manufacturing process where our natural resources are saved with our 4mm top layer process.

When it comes to solid timber being 19mm, 2/3 of this timber will never be used and is wasted.

An environmentally sustainable surface

The life of your floor is from the top of the board to the top of the tongue (top layer).

Pre-finished engineered flooring

Raw solid timber

Barrington Timber Floors are a natural product, with exceptional environmental engineered benefits, as a highly renewable resource.

Barrington's 20 year wear warranty

Barrington not only comes with a Lifetime Structural Warranty, it also comes with a 20 Year Wear Warranty thanks to our market leading Anti-Scratch 70% Gloss.

The magic of the 70% gloss is how it magnifies the deep rich colours while also accentuating the beautiful grain that exists in our Australian timbers. This beautiful finish requires 8 generous coats of the UV treated lacquer.

Manufactured and treated

Packed and ready for your home

Timber is a natural product, so colour variations between products should be expected, giving you a unique look.

The final colour of your flooring may not be evident until after your floor has been installed. Over the next 12 months your floor will oxidise with light, causing a chemical reaction with the tannins in the timber. This generally will allow the floor to darken over time.

The Manufacturing Process

1 Grown in Australian Timber Forests

Our Barrington timber range is harvested from managed Australian timber forests which are located 3 hours from Newcastle on the Barrington Tops near Gloucester NSW. This beautiful part of Australia is where we find timbers Like New England Blackbutt, Stringybark, Blue Gum and Brushbox while the traditional feel and look of Jarrah comes from W.A.

2 Cutting down the mature tree

Only when the tree has reached its maturity, this then will ensure the finest timber for our Barrington Range. Our team of professional lumberjacks cut under the strict guidance of the NSW forestry harvesting plan. The logs are felled ready for transport, whilst leaving the forest environment under authorised controlled conditions for new growth to take place for future logging.

3 Manufactured and Treated

Now the tree is taken to our manufacturing facility where a 12 months process takes place until we reach the finished product. A wide variety of production and treatment techniques will be performed under our strict quality control system. Different timber species require different drying processes, this is due to the different genetic properties of each species. Barrington's Lifetime Structural Warranty & 20 Year Wear Warranty are a reflection of the whole manufacturing process. Once these precision manufacturing requirements are met the finished product is carefully packed ready for delivery.

4 Packed and Ready for your home

Packed and ready for your home, office or any other timber flooring requirements that you need. Once installed by a professional floor layer our range of Barrington hardwood timber products then start to truly become appreciated. With our wide range of Barrington flooring products, you can create that personal finishing touch to your private or public indoor space. From a rich wide textured floor with our Sydney Blue Gum to a more contemporary feel using Stringybark. By selecting Australian Select Timbers Barrington range, you can't go wrong.
